PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

H.R. 1485 would make Esther Karinge eligible for adjustment of her status to that of a permanent resident.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR THE LEGISLATION

Esther Njeri Karinge was born in Limuru, Kenya on April 24, 1962. She came to the United States on September 30, 1994 and affirmatively applied for asylum on August 6, 1997. On November 13, 1997, an asylum officer referred her case to an immigration judge who denied the application, but granted voluntary departure on March 12, 1998. Esther lost her appeal of that decision on January 31, 2003.

Since then, however, Esther has been allowed to remain in the country through official stays of removal, which the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) has granted annually for humanitarian reasons. Esther's son, Nicholas, was born in Cambridge, Massachusetts on December 2, 1995 with multiple birth defects. He continues to suffer from several severe physical and mental disabilities, including cerebral palsy, spastic quadriplegia, hearing loss, and developmental delays. Upon learning of these birth defects, Nicholas' father abandoned the family, leaving Esther as Nicholas' only parent and caretaker.

As a result, Nicholas is completely dependent on Esther for his survival. He needs continuous medical care and requires medical management from numerous specialists, including orthopedists, neurologists, ophthalmologists, audiologists, otolaryngologists, physical therapists, occupational therapists, speech therapists, and other professionals. Nicholas has made significant improvements due to the efforts of his doctors and care providers, but his doctors believe any progress will be lost if he were to return to Kenya where such services are not available to him.

According to his medical doctors, Nicholas' removal to Kenya or separation from his mother would have serious, detrimental impacts on his development. Nicholas' doctors state that he might not survive if he were taken back to Kenya. While Nicholas has exceeded doctors' expectations with the treatment he has received in the United States, the treatment he depends on for survival is not available in Kenya. His doctors also believe that separating Nicholas from his mother would be emotionally devastating and potentially life-threatening for him because of his mental and physiological disabilities. One of Nicholas' specialists notes that children separated from a parent in such circumstances often develop "failure to thrive" syndrome, which can include deterioration of physical and mental development.

As a result of the severity of Nicholas' medical condition, DHS has granted Esther annual stays of removal since February 13, 2003. Such stays of removal are temporary and discretionary. H.R. 1485 presents the only option for Esther and her son to remain permanently in the United States.

Ms. Esther KARINGE (A73-616-282) is the beneficiary of H.R. 1485, private legislation introduced by Rep. Ed Markey (D- MA), on March 12, 2007. Ms. KARINGE is a native of Kenya, born on April 24, 1962. She has two sons, Paul KARINGE, born on June 1, 1981, who is a citizen and resident of Kenya, and Nicolas KARINGE, born on December 2, 1995, in Boston, MA. Ms. KARINGE resides in Medford, Massachusetts, with her son Nicolas who is her only relative in the United States.

Nicolas was born with cerebral palsy and needs a great deal of care. He is unable to walk without crutches or assistance, and is partially deaf. Nicolas' father, Robert Gichuru, is currently delinquent in providing child support and has violated a protection order placed against him by Ms. KARINGE. Nicolas is currently receiving Section Eight Housing in Medford. Ms. KARINGE is involved in several community groups including the Immigrant Learning Center in Malden, Family Ties, Family Voices Boston, New England Serve Boston, and the Disability Committee, Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts. The YWCA presented her with an award for her work in the community.

ICE databases including the Central Index System (CIS) indicate that Esther KARINGE entered the United States on September 30, 1994, through Boston as a B2 non-immigrant visitor, admitted until March 29, 1995. Upon arriving to the United States, Ms. KARINGE legally obtained a Social Security card and New Hampshire driver's license. On September 25, 1997, Ms. KARINGE was issued a Notice to Appear and Warrant of Arrest. On December 11, 1997, Ms. KARINGE filed an Asylum Petition. On January 20, 1998, Ms. KARINGE had her initial appearance at the Immigration Court in Boston. On March 12, 1998, Ms. KARINGE had her asylum case heard by the immigration judge. The immigration judge denied the application for asylum and withholding of deportation. Ms. KARINGE also sought the benefit of voluntary departure. The immigration judge noted the fact that Ms. KARINGE had twice previously claimed U.S citizenship in order to obtain employment as a serious negative factor with regard to granting voluntary departure. Despite this serious negative factor, the immigration judge did grant her the privilege of voluntarily departing the United States within 60 days, or on or before May 11, 1998, conditioned on the posting of a bond to assure that she would depart. On March 18, 1998, Ms. KARINGE posted bond, then filed an appeal of the Immigration Court's decision on April 6, 1998. On January 31, 2003, the Bureau of Immigration Appeals denied the appeal and granted Ms. KARINGE Voluntary Departure on March 2, 2003. Ms. KARINGE was then placed on an Order of Supervision on May 19, 2003. Ms. KARINGE was granted several Stays of Removal prior to February 26, 2008, when a report was requested on H.R. 1485 by the House Subcommittee, creating a new stay for the 110th Congress.

During an interview conducted by an ICE Special Agent, Esther KARINGE stated that she feared for her safety if she were to return to Kenya. She stated that the ruling government of Kenya has targeted her tribe. Ms. KARINGE stated that her uncle was a target of a government raid. She expressed her concern for the welfare of her son, Nicolas, if she were to return to Kenya. Ms. KARINGE stated that if Nicolas accompanied her to Kenya, he would be an outcast due to his disability.

Richard Mangiafico, a neighbor, stated that Ms. KARINGE does not socialize often with other residents in the building, but that she seems pleasant. Mr. Mangiafico also stated that Nicolas needs help walking and is sometimes in a wheelchair. Makrina Ormond, the leasing manager at Mystic Place Apartments stated that Ms. KARINGE is moving soon to an apartment that is handicap accessible for Nicolas.

CIS checks and information received from Ms. KARINGE indicate that she worked without authorization between 1994 and April 17, 1998 when her first Employment Authorization Card was issued. Esther KARINGE has been employed as a nurse's assistant and a mental health counselor. Ms. KARINGE was a case manager and program manager for the Refugee Immigration Ministry. Ms. KARINGE is currently a teacher's assistant at Medford Public Schools and is paid approximately $17,000 a year.

No criminal history in the United States was located for Esther KARINGE. The only incident involving law enforcement she has had was receiving a traffic ticket in Malden, Massachusetts. Local police department checks were also negative.

ADDITIONAL VIEWS

Meritorious private bills should either represent unique and compelling circumstances or fit within private bill precedent of the modern era (from the 97th Congress onward, following the AB-SCAM private bill scandal).

There is precedent in the modern era for the enactment of private bills where the aliens' U.S. citizen family members suffered serious illnesses which would be exacerbated if the aliens were returned home or the U.S. citizens accompanied them home. A private bill was enacted in the 104th Congress for an alien who had earlier been deported to Mexico for marriage fraud.¹ Before his deportation, he married his second wife in a legitimate marriage and they had two children. His wife and one of their children were carriers for Reiter's syndrome, a severe, disabling, incurable arthritic disease who could be triggered by an intestinal infection with an organism widespread in Mexico. Thus, they risked serious illness by joining him in Mexico. The private bill waived the grounds of inadmissibility for marriage fraud. The House Report stated that "this legislation acknowledges the previously set precedent in private legislation that separation due to medical circumstances is viewed . . . as satisfying the standard of extreme hardship to an American citizen."²

In the 106th Congress, a private bill was enacted granting permanent residence to an alien whose petition for permanent residence filed by his U.S. citizen wife had been denied because of marriage fraud in his first marriage.³ The INS believed this second marriage was valid. The alien's U.S. citizen wife had been diagnosed with multiple sclerosis and her doctor indicated that she might rapidly deteriorate as a result of any type of severe stress.

A DHS report on Ms. Karinge was received on May 6 and contained no derogatory information. Because H.R. 1485 fits within private bill precedent and the DHS report contained no derogatory information, this is a meritorious private bill.
